Traditional learning almost always involves a "sage on the stage", the teacher who communicates in-person with a group of students in a brick and mortar facility. This method of learning typically involves students gathering in physical classrooms during a certain timeframe with the purpose of learning about specific topics or to gain specific hands-on job training and experience. You must go out of your way to pursue extra training, develop a skill set that fits a certain niche, the cybersecurity expert and founder of GoBestVPN says. Anecdotally speaking, I've seen many of my colleagues who had taken the same route as me, a mix of both traditional learning followed by specific online learning, can go a long way. The same trend is occurring in the UK as well.
