The level of your financial prosperity influences your level of well-being. The result of an experiment performed on wealthy people says that your happiness level is strongly correlated with your money until you are able to generate 5000 euros a month. Above this figure, your happiness does not depend on your money anymore, if you keep this flow steady. But how do you generate 5000 euros a month and even generate more, so that you can fully focus on other sections of your life? Pay Yourself First is the central message of the book “The Richest Man in Babylon” by George Samuel Clason. This money rule is written in only three words (pay, yourself, first), but not many people understand what it actually means and why you should respect this rule.
